An example of an Internet browser display showing the status of the kitchen stove and a cooking meal at 2625 Broadwater Drive at 6:40PM on 3/16/00. This display was the result of a query by phone number group (703.555.1212) requesting a selected subset of authorized data items pertaining to all members of a group (folder) named "Stove" within a group (folder) named "Kitchen" and sorted by the default data item "Stove Burner". The actual query as entered in the URL address field of the browser may have been: #703.555.1212/Kitchen/Stove. The fact that the "Beef Stew" cooking task reached 100% done triggered ICUC to command the "Stove" device group within the "Kitchen" group associated with phone number 703.555.1212 to reduce heat to "Low 1" from "Medium High 1". This status display is set to re-generate itself with the latest "Stove" statistics once every minute. The "Command" button can be used for manual remote control of the "Stove" group device. Other viewable and controllable device groups within the kitchen associated with this phone number might be the refrigerator, microwave, bread machine and dishwasher. A group is a collection of handles and/or other groups. Groups can generally be thought of conceptually as file folders. However, unlike a traditional file folder, a given subgroup can appear in other groups simultaneously.
